OBSERVANCE OF DECORATION DAY

MORE GENERAL THAN HAS BEEN IN THIS VICINITY FOR MANY YEARS—THE GRAND ARMY POSTS AND AUXILIARY ORDERS, PAID LOVING TRIBUTES TO THE DEAD, AND THE GRAVES OF BOTH UNION AND CONFEDERATE WERE DECORATED.

Decoration Day was observed in Wheeling yesterday more generally than at any former observance of the day. The soldiers of the blue paid their tribute of love to the dead, and it was noticed that the graves of the Confederate dead were not neglected by their one-time enemies. This is but another demonstration of the complete wiping out of sectionalism and entire restoration of amity among the living veterans that have come to the front recently, especially since the war with Spain began.

The day was observed by all classes and conditions of men in this community. Most of the manufacturing and wholesale establishments, banks, public offices and many of the retail stores suspended business. Thousands went to the country, and Wheeling park and Mozart parks were the mecca for very large holiday crowds. In the afternoon 1,600 people saw Wheeling's ball team defeated by the Salem nine. The observance in the over-the-river towns was as general as in Wheeling.

THE OLD SOLDIERS

And Auxiliary Orders Observe Memorial Day as It Hasn't been Observed here in Many Years—The Graves Profusely Decorated.

The old soldiers and the auxiliary orders observed the day as it hasn't been observed in Wheeling for years, and the significance of the occasion was strikingly brought out in all the exercises held at the various cemeteries. The presence of so many school children assisting the veterans was a beautiful feature, and the weather was ideal, the warm rays of the sun being tempered by a cooling breeze.

This year it was decided to hold a general celebration at the Peninsula cemetery in the afternoon, one in which all the old soldiers could participate, and the innovation was a decided success. In the morning, details visited the other cemeteries and strewed the graves of departed comrades with the most appropriate tributes, beautiful flowers. The attendance at the cemeteries was much larger than in previous years, and considerable more interest was evinced by those who were not at the front in the "sixties" or who had no deceased relatives that were, and the increased interest manifested was probably due to the "present unpleasantness" with Spain.

The squads detailed from Holliday and Stephens posts, G. A. R., to visit the cemeteries, were noted previously in the Intelligencer, with the names of those composing them. Greenwood and Mount Calvary were visited by a detachment in charge of Department Commander Richard Robertson; Charles T. Reed commanded the detachment which visited the Stone Church cemetery; at Elm Grove: Caleb Sylvie had charge of the one assigned to Mount Wood; and as usual, Stephens post had charge of the exercises at Mount Zion cemetery, out Caldwell's run, and in charge of Joseph A. Arkie. The exercises at these burying places lasted until nearly noon, and at 2 o'clock the general celebration was held at Peninsula cemetery.

There was no lack of flowers. The Woman's Relief Corps had deftly arranged the bounteous baskets of flowers, the old boys in blue carried to the cemeteries, and every grave, designated by small American flags at its head and foot, whether it covered the remains of Federal or Confederate soldier, was almost hidden by heaps of floral tributes. The regular G. A. R. ritual was read, and brief remarks were made appropriate to the day at all the cemeteries. The Ritchie school children, with drum corps, marched with the "old fellows" to Mount Zion, and the Clay school children attended the Peninsula exercises.

As was natural, more interest was taken in the memorial exercises at the Peninsula. The 1 and 2 o'clock motors carried out large crowds, while a greater number of people walked out. At 1:30 o'clock the old soldiers, accompanied by a drum corps, left the G. A. R. hall and marched to the cemetery. They halted at the grave in which lies Capt. Wm. Morgan of Company E, First West Virginia Infantry. This grave stands by itself and some distance from it on all sides stands a fringe of trees. Within this circle the veterans halted, and the spectators followed their example by baring their heads. Commander H. J. Felber was in charge, and he was assisted by Comrades Rogers, Watkins and Peiler.

At the conclusion of the reading of the ritual, Department Commander Richard Robertson spoke, giving the reasons for the afternoon exercises at the Peninsula, and branching out into more general remarks concerning Memorial day. Incidentally he referred to the fact that in Stone Church cemetery some years ago, the G. A. R. discovered that twelve old soldiers occupied paupers' graves, and the two posts then decided that such a condition of affairs demanded a change, even if their treasury was depleted, consequently they purchased enough ground in the cemetery to provide an honorable resting place for any old soldier of Ohio county. Comrade F. H. Crago, the orator of the day, was next introduced, and made an eloquent address, concluding by reciting the appropriate and beautiful poem, "The Blue and the Gray." The speaker denied that Decoration day was observed in order to keep alive sectional feeling that might have been engendered, or to boast of deeds of valor, but it was to pay yearly tributes of respect to dead comrades and rededicate themselves to the work of making this country grander and greater. Professor Crago argued against the G. A. R. giving up its organization, and the Confederate Veterans giving up theirs; for, said he, there is no animosity today between the survivors of both armies. He regretted that Decoration day was made an occasion for all kinds of revelry, and said it should be kept, not as a day of mourning, but as a day for reflection, and incidentally for rejoicing in a land redeemed and made greater and purer by the baptism of blood it received. He called attention to the greater number of graves there are this year than there was last year, and said soon all the veterans would have answered the last roll call. The present conflict with Spain was aptly referred to.

This concluded the speaking, and the old soldiers moved farther up the hillside, where the work of strewing the graves with flowers began. There are many veterans sleeping under the Peninsula's sod, and the flag-designated graves were quite conspicuous. The cemetery never looked so attractive, and despite the serious air of the exercises the large crowd of spectators enjoyed their impressiveness. An incident to show the reverence for the little green mounds which mark the resting place of a comrade who shared the tent, the long, weary marches and the heat of the battle, is worthy of illustration. Just as Commander Felber and his party moved off from Captain Morgan's grave, a tall, and yet sturdy veteran, tapped a comrade on the shoulder and said: "Let me have a few more flowers, please. There's a fellow buried over here who was in a Missouri regiment with me, and I don't think I had enough flowers. You see, we were chums in the war." And the veteran approached told his comrade to help himself to the basket of roses.

The exercises at the Peninsula lasted until 4 o'clock, and brought to an end one of the best observances of the day ever given it in this city.

BELLAIRE'S OLD SOLDIERS

And Citizens Generally Participate in Observing the Day.

Memorial Day was appropriately observed yesterday in Bellaire, more people perhaps than in any recent year, joining in the services and in decorating the graves of dead soldiers. Nearly all of the manufactories were closed and although no set speeches were on the programme for the day, the very silence seemed impressive in the presence of unfurled flags, the contributions of fragrant flowers, and the silent tears that could not be restrained as the little mounds at the cemetery were passed.

Spangler Post, G. A. R., led in the beautiful custom of planting a flag, emblem of the Union preserved by the heroes of civil war, and symbol of the grandest Union known to the world. All of this aroused a sympathy akin to love and this feeling was augmented by the presence of bereaved families who bedecked the graves of loved ones in that silent city of the dead, who had known no war.

It was a day of mellowing influence and stirred all the better sentiment of the people.

In the evening the services at the First M. E. church were attended by a large audience and all the exercises were appreciated, the addresses of Rev. John T. Foster being an especially notable feature.

DOWN AT MOUNDSVILLE

The Day was Observed More Generally than Ever Before.

Decoration Day was perhaps more generally observed by the people of Moundsville than any previous one. The first service of the day was the raising of a twenty-five foot flag at the Moundsville Brick Company's works at 10:30 a. m. A large crowd was present. Addresses were made by Hon. B. F. McElghen and Rev. B. M. Spurr. At 2 o'clock p. m. the parade was formed on Seventh street in front of the court house, and the command "Forward, march," was given. The following was the order of formation: City officials, marshal and aides, drum corps, Grand Army of the Republic, Sons of Veterans, I. O. O. F., Jr. O. U. S. A. M. K. of P., Sunday school scholars. Nearly all residences and places of business were elaborately decorated and many beautiful flowers could be seen everywhere. There were nearly seventy-five G. A. R. men in line and the other organizations turned out well. At the cemetery the services were well conducted and very impressive.

AT CAMERON AND SHERRARD.

Memorial exercises were held at Cameron and Sherrard yesterday by the Marshall county old soldiers, and at each place the records were broken for large crowds. At Cameron, the principal orator was Hon. W. H. C. Curtis, of West Liberty, and at Sherrard, Rev. B. B. Evans, of Wheeling, and Hon. J. W. Leach, of Benwood, were the speakers.

SHE WAS INTOXICATED.

When the Elm Grove 8 o'clock motor arrived last night, Lieutenant Supler, in answer to a telephone message received at police headquarters, stood on the station platform as if expecting some one. Presently a young woman, of about twenty summers alighted. She was very drunk, and her male escort made haste to spirit her away. The officer, however, with the willing aid of some of the other female passengers, secured her, and brought her into the lock-up, where she registered as Bertha Kramer, of Barnesville. Of late she has been living in the Fifth ward.

BLAZE NEAR LA BELLE.

Shortly after midnight this morning fire alarm box 56, at the La Belle mill, was pulled. A vacant house on the company's ground, north of the tin mill, caught fire from some cause, but the blaze was soon extinguished by a Babcock. The fire department responded in excellent style.

Only One Person in Fifty Cured.

The Old Methods of Treating Catarrh, Bronchitis and Asthma Condemned.

THEY ARE AGAINST NATURE'S LAWS.

The New Discovery, "Hyomei," Found to Be the Only Rational Cure for These Diseases.

Statistics show that less than two per cent. of the people suffering from Catarrh, Bronchitis and Asthma have ever been cured by any of the old methods of treatment. It seems strange, indeed, that in this enlightened age, the reason for this utter failure to bring relief to so many thousands of sufferers has not been discovered before, and it only proves that men and women, no matter how intelligent and careful they may be in the management of their daily affairs, lose their heads completely and use neither common sense nor good judgment when confronted by disease. How much confidence would any one have in the physician who proposed to cure diseases of the liver and kidneys by forcing medicated air into these organs? Yet there are hundreds of people here today who are doing what is equally absurd, that is, trying to cure Catarrh, Bronchitis and Asthma with liquids, sprays, douches and atomizers, well-knowing that they defy the laws of nature, which never intended the air passages for the use of such medicines.

There is but ONE way of successfully treating diseases of the Head, Throat, and Lungs, and this is

"THE GUNBOAT"

Given its Initial Trip Last Evening with a Distinguished Party Aboard—A Trip Over the City Electric Lines.

Last evening the Wheeling Railway Company's trolley party car, which the officials of the road have christened "The Gunboat," was given its initial trip over the lines of the city. The car will no doubt be in lively demand this year.

In the party were Mayor J. R. Butts, Captain Thomas D. Bennett, President of second branch of council M. A. Chew, Sheriff H. C. Richards, City Collector J. K. Hall, Circuit Clerk C. H. Henning, Secretary of the water board, John E. Schellhase, City Solicitor Frank W. Nesbitt, City Clerk C. H. Watkins, City Receiver A. H. Forester, Assistant Postmaster Alf Davis, and Col. Sam B. Harrison. Among the councilmen from the first branch were Messrs. Hazlett, Stroebel, McKelvey, McLure, Williams and Ebeling; second branch—Kindelberger, Beckett, Watson, Ahl and Nesbitt. Representatives of the press were among the guests.

The trip around the loop was made in one hour and twenty minutes, the start being made from the McLure at 8:10 o'clock, and the hotel was reached on the return at 9:30 o'clock. During the trip Manager Wright frequently passed the cigars around, and this with other courtesies, made the trip very enjoyable. All fortunate enough to avail themselves of the opportunity. The "Gunboat" was in charge of Manager Wright, Superintendent Loftus, Conductor Murray and Motorman Adam Hart. A special car, brilliantly illuminated followed close to the Gunboat and carried the surplus passengers from the new car.

Death's Sudden Call.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. FAIRMONT, May 30.—This afternoon Philip H. Schuler died suddenly at the fair grounds from apoplexy. He was a resident of Mannington, having moved from here about two years ago. He is in company with a number of other gentlemen came here to meet the Fairmont gun club, and have a friendly shoot. He seemed in his usually good health, but suddenly expired after having discharged his gun. Dr. Jamison was standing close to him and rendered all the medical aid possible.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVY.

"Intelligencer" Portfolio No. 10 Most Interesting as Far Issued.

The patriotic excitement with which the nation is imbued is distinctly manifested by the extraordinary success of "Uncle Sam's Navy." Strong in the right, fraternal in spirit, invincible in righteous purpose, a reunited country is moving forward with resolute might to punish Spain for her cruelty, her oppressions, her insults and her monstrous crimes of assassination, torture and starvation. America stands before the world as the champion of humanity, of civilization, of the rights of the weak as against the strong, of those cursed by a merciless tyranny as against oppressors.

In the nine numbers of "Uncle Sam's Navy" which have already appeared the naval strength of this country is pictured with vividness and exactness to the eye of the beholder. Number ten in the series, one of the most interesting of the lot, is now ready.

The following views are shown: Double-turreted monitor Monadnock; arrival of a battalion at Tampa; the cruiser Prairie; ferryboat loading marines at Brooklyn; entrance to the Brooklyn navy yard; Brooklyn navy yard dry dock; battleship Texas coming out of the dry dock; dock of the training ship Essex; the Vesuvius stripped for battle; alarm drill at Hampton Roads; torpedo adjusted in deck tube; eight-inch gun and crew of the Atlanta; the dynamite cruiser Buffalo; composite gunboat Newport; converted torpedo boat destroyer Mayflower; main deck of the Indiana.

This portfolio admirably supplements the preceding ones, the whole series being an unrivaled presentation of a modern navy, showing the formidable exteriors, giving interesting glimpses of the interiors concealed within the threatening hulls and illustrating the intricate process of modern gun and armor making. Copies of the preceding numbers of the series of portfolios are still to be had.

All Sorts of Local News and Gossip From the Glass City.

There is no doubt whatever, of more than enough men being enrolled here to make a company of the Sixteenth district regiment of Ohio Volunteers under President McKinley's second call. The men are responding grandly to the quiet call. In a list of over half a hundred scanned yesterday, there were but three under twenty years of age and only four over forty. They are enlisting in the prime of life, ready, willing and many of them anxious for the honors of war that await the valiant soldier. There has been some bickering about securing places of officers, but in this city there seems to be no local jealousies to interfere with the organization. The boys seem to realize that the man who wins his spurs in the field of action is the one to wear them best.

The faithful employees of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad here yesterday, ran up a flag on a new pole over the station, and all the locomotives in the yard here greeted it with shrill whistling.

The Young Men's Club had a delightful picnic in Keyser's orchard yesterday, and among the diversions was the tramping of a Spanish flag and the stars and stripes planted in its place.

There never was a greater display of flags in this city than at present and there would be more of them but the flags cannot be had. However, the demand will be largely satisfied this week.

The Knight of Pythias band went down to Sistersville early yesterday morning and in the afternoon quite a company of young people went down to join in the festivities there.

The Odd Fellows had a splendid time at their hall yesterday and the visitors at noon and in the evening enjoyed the occasion. Dinner and supper were served in the hall.

W. G. Hoffman came down from Pittsburgh yesterday to spend the day with his mother here. He is engaged in the office of the United States Glass Company.

The members of the Royal Arcanum, with their families, will celebrate the fourth anniversary of their organization this evening.

The flag raising at the Second ward

T. H. Johnson, of the Enterprise Window Glass Company, was in town yesterday on business, but left in the afternoon.

FIRST OFFICIAL MAP OF THE INVASION OF CUBA.

This map was designed for this paper by a military commander, and shows how the invasion of Cuba will be carried out. A strict blockade will be held by the blockading fleet while a landing of troops will be made at Cardenas, at the west of Havana, and at Mariel on the east. From the other side of the island a large expedition will land and march directly on the Cuban capital. At a signal the blockading fleet will close in upon Morro Castle, bombard the city and destroy the forts, while a large army, joined by Gomez's party of 20,000 strong from Cubitas, will attack Havana by land. Our fleet will pour destructive shells into the city. Havana's condition is about ripe for seizure, as starvation rules in the city, and the insurgents are within three miles of the gates. Our delay is explained by the fact that a starved community will offer less resistance than a well-fed organization.
